No Shitting

There's no doubt about it: When you've got to go, you've got to go. Just don't go on the Great Wheel. There are plenty of places throughout downtown Seattle where people regularly take shits. Let's not turn the Great Wheel into one of those places. At least not for a while.

No Fedoras

This rule is bound to be controversial. I know it's tempting, gentlemen, but please avoid silly hats while riding the Great Wheel. They may seem cool now, but five years from this day you'll look back on that fedora and wonder what the fuck you were thinking. The Seattle Great Wheel is about having fun, not regret.

A Research Study About Your Child's Sleep, Thinking, and Behavior

Researchers at the University of Washington School of Nursing and Seattle Children's want to find ways to learn about your child's sleep, thinking, and behavior. This research study is for children and their parents.

Research is always voluntary!

Would the study be a good fit for me?

This study might be a good fit for you if:

- Child between 6-to-11 years of age
- Parents > 18 years of age
- Children and parents able to read and speak English

What would happen if I took part in the study?

If you and your child decide to take part in the search study:

- You and your child would come for an overnight sleep study in the Sleep Laboratory in the School of Nursing at the University of Washington
- Your child would complete standardized tests of performance and play games on a computer
- Parents and children would complete surveys

We will pay for your parking. Children and their parents who take part receive $120 to thank them for their time and effort.

There may be possible benefits if you take part in the study. learn more about your child's sleep patterns

To take part in this research study or for more information, please contact Teresa at 206-221-6576

The principal researcher for this study is Teresa Ward, RN, PhD at the University of Washington, School of Nursing.

Writing What Is True and Horrible (a 4-week writing class at Richard Hugo House)

How do you deal with news of the outside world in your writing? Do you refuse all news because it's overwhelming or for want of a technique? In this workshop, we will look at how two consummate writers, Jonathan Safran Foer and Toni Morrison, treat "news of the outside world"—broadly defined. We'll then create our own fictional works about historical events, such as the Holocaust, or social phenomena, such as Jim Crow, that are true and horrible.

Venue: Richard Hugo House
1634 11th Ave. (on Capitol Hill, just east of Cal Anderson Park)

Instructor: Elizabeth Alexander

Level: All Levels

Meeting Dates Thursdays, 07/12/2012 - 08/02/2012. 7:00pm - 9:00pm

About the Instructor:

Elizabeth Alexander grew up in Dallas but doesn't act like it. Her short stories, poems and essays have appeared in Golden Handcuffs Review, Archives of Neurology and a number of literary journals named after animals—notably monkeys. She is hard at work on a book of linked stories that treat the dregs of U.S. history, in the post-WWII era, in what is (definitely) an unconventional and (hopefully) an engaging way. COME AS YOU ARE
